1. A headquarters building of the block of buildings occupied by the naval headquarters in Tallinn (24°45'E/50°26'N), Estonian SSR, was located at the intersection formed by Endla and Vaksali Taen Streets, about 150 meters from Charles Church. The sentries who were posted in front of the building wore the following inscription on their cap bands: "Vozdushniye Sily - Balt - Flotta" (Air Forces of the Baltic Fleet). The air force headquarters, whose commanding officer was a colonel, was subordinate to the headquarters of the Baltic Fleet. The sentries, and officers, wore light blue naval uniforms.
 2. The three-story building along Kaarli Taen Street was surrounded by an iron fence. It had been occupied by the Deutsche Treuhandgesellschaft (German Trust-Company) during WW II. Supply rooms and messhalls were housed in its basement. Its front along the road was about 50 meters. A sentry, armed with a rifle, and 5 or 6 sedans were usually observed in front of the building.
